Western wanderings

We had to wait about half an hour until they would bring in our horses for the ride along the old trail. So we just sat down on the bench and decided the only thing was to wait which was some kind of a signal for the Old Timer to come right up to us. I heard that he must be past ninety but his mind was clear and alert. Actually he didn't have anything much to do at the ranch except spin tales about the days when the West was the West. He came right up to us and sat down on an old packing case.

"West without horses?" he began. "Doesn't sound right. But once they didn't have 'em. How did we get horses? The answer seems simple. They came with the Spaniards. De Soto had a lot of horses when he went to Florida in 1539, and a couple of years later he must have taken some horses when he went to the Middle West. Then Coronado had his horses when he went looking for the Seven Cities.

He didn't find that gold, but he had horses with him on his expedition. Remember I said the answer sounds simple. You figure that some of those horses escaped and ran wild. Then a herd began. The Indians saw them and recognized the fact that they could capture them and train them. Sounds reasonable but it just isn't so!

If you did have any wild horses in those early days they would have been wiped out by other animals. So it means that the first horses here had to have some kind of protection. In fiction you learn how the Indian is the perfect master and rider of a horse. But somewhere along the line he had to learn something about how to handle a horse. Once he had horses his entire life changed.

And a lot of things changed with the horse in the West, but horses were only a kind of power. You could use mules as well as oxen to pull wagons. I guess a lot of folks know that we even once had camels. Maybe the idea would have worked well with more of a chance. Then your hero rides into town mounted on his trusty camel. So who knows, we could have had camel ranches in The West. No reason why you folks can't be waiting for your camels to be saddled.

But you got to feed horses, mules, oxen, and camels. The wind is free and requires no food. Sooner or later somebody was going to get a notion into his head. Rig up a wagon with sails and steering gear. So you sail the plains instead of the high seas. More than a century ago a fellow by the name of Thomas actually did it. He came into Westport with his contraption. He had brakes on his wheels. He lowered his sails and came into port. What was it? The good folks called it a Windwagon.

They even formed a company to get these contraptions into service. Looked like a big idea. So they drew up plans and built a real big one. Something like a Conestoga prairie schooner was rigged like a catboat. And then they got it started. They say something went wrong that day. The passengers got scared and jumped for safety, but not Captain Thomas. He stuck to his steering wheel.

The idea to build a fleet was abandoned, and maybe he is still there on the plains with it. How it would have gone down the side of a roadless mountain, I do not know. But it would have been some real big fight—soldiers in a Windwagon against Comanches on horseback. Which sort of reminds me of something. Did you folks know that Kit Carson once fought a duel on horseback? Sort of a different use of the horse. There's a lot of different versions of the story.

Kit told what happened briefly. He had been on a trapping expedition in 1835. The group sold their beaver to the traders and then remained in summer quarters till September. Captain Driggs was agent of the American Fur Company at that time. In his party was a large Frenchman who was very strong. He made a practice of whipping every man that he was displeased with, and that was nearly all.

One day after he had beaten two or three men, he said he had no trouble to flog Frenchmen. And as for Americans he would take a switch and switch them. So Kit talked back and said he did not like such talk from any man. Anyhow he was also the worst American in camp. Furthermore if this fellow, whose name was Shunar, ever used such talk again, he would beat him up.

Such a challenge had to be met. Otherwise Shunar would lose face. Even in those days you couldn't show yellow and survive. So Shunar didn't say a word. He started for his rifle, mounted his horse and was ready to fight. As soon as Kit saw this, he also mounted his horse. Then seized the first weapon he could get hold of which was a pistol. Kit then galloped up to him and

We're looking for people who like to draw

BY JON WHITCOMB

DO YOU LIKE to draw or paint? If you do—America's 12 Most Famous Artists are looking for you. We'd like to help you find out if you have talent worth developing.

Here's why we make this offer. About ten years ago, my colleagues and I realized that too many people were missing wonderful careers in art. Some hesitated to think they had talent. Others just couldn't get the professional art training they needed without leaving home or giving up their jobs.

We decided to do something about this. First, we pooled the rich, practical experience, the professional know-how, and the precious trade secrets that helped us reach the top. Then—illustrating this knowledge with over 5,000 special drawings and paintings—we created a complete course of art training that folks all over the country could take right in their own homes and in their spare time.

Our training has helped thousands win the rich rewards of part-time or full-time art careers. Here are a few:

Don Smith lives in New Orleans. Three years ago Don knew nothing about art—even doubted he had talent. Today, he is an illustrator with a leading advertising agency in the South—and has a future as big as he wants to make it.

New Mother Wins New Career

When Kathryn Gorsuch found out that she was to have a baby—she left her file clerk job at an aircraft company and studied art at home with us. By the time the baby was seven months old, she rejoined the same company—this time as a well-paid commercial artist.

Lilian Ashby of Toronto writes: "I'm losing count but I believe I have painted 57 and sold 41 pictures since beginning your wonderful Course."

Escapes Dead-End Job

Stanley Bowen, father of three children, was trapped in a dull, low-paying job. By studying with us, he was able to throw over his old job to become an illustrator for a fast-growing art studio... at a fat increase in pay!

Harriet Kuzniewski was bored with an "ordinary" job when she sent for our talent test. Convinced she had the makings of an artist, she enrolled with us. Soon, she landed a job as a fashion artist. Today, she does high-style illustration in New York.

Gertrude Vander Poel had never drawn a thing until she started studying with us. Now a swank New York gallery exhibits her paintings for sale.

Mrs. Crathie Guy, North Carolina housewife, writes: "After my fourth lesson, I began selling my drawings. Now I work full-time as an artist in my own home studio, and I can't keep up with all the orders I get."

John Whitaker of Memphis, Tenn., was an airline clerk when he began studying with us. Two years later, he won a national cartooning contest. Today he draws a popular comic strip enjoyed by millions.

In just four months Doris White of Wauwatosa, Wis., has painted and sold $750 worth of paintings... all in her spare time!

Happy With Career of Her Own

Mrs. Doris S. Hagen, New Rochelle, N. Y., writes: "The Famous Artists Course has provided me with extra money for trips and a bank account to do with as I please. Without it, I would not have had a profession."

John Busketta was a gas company pipefitter when he enrolled with us. He still works for the same company—but as an artist in the advertising department, at much higher pay!

Earns Seven Times as Much

Eric Ericson worked in a garage until he studied with us. Today, he's a successful advertising artist... earns seven times as much... and he's having a beautiful new home built for his family.

With our training Wanda Pickulski gave up her typing job, became fashion artist for a local department store.

Don Golenba of Detroit stepped up from railroad worker to the styling department of a major automobile company. Now he helps design new car models.

A West Virginia salesgirl studied with us, got a job as a fashion artist. Later she became advertising manager of the best store in town.

Send for Famous Artists Talent Test

How about you? Wouldn't you like to find out if you have talent worth training for a full-time or part-time art career? Just send for our remarkably revealing 12-page talent test. Thousands formerly paid $1 for this test. But now our School offers it free and will grade and analyze it for you free. If you show talent, you'll be eligible for professional training by our School, in your own home and in your spare time. Mail coupon today.
